

Poultry Item 1919

Mahogany Russian Orloffs

English Red Caps

Foundation Stock purchased and imported from Europe's best breeders. February, March and April young stock for sale. Exhibition and breeding specimens only. Both breeds non-sitters, very handsome the Orloff an exceptional Utility Fowl. Our stock reared under ideal conditions, thoroughly modern, sanitary plant. Highest Bank References.

DIVERSION POULTRY FARM, E. A. Frank, Prop.

FARM: Kisshtgbower Road. CITY OFFICE: Broad St., Augusta, Ga.

Mahogany Russian Orloffs

Not a new creation— bred 200 years In Russia, Its native country. Qui pearance and rich in color of plumage. European Standard Weights: Cock, 8 pounds. Hen 6 pounds. The Orloff is a tight-feathered, yellow-skinned, yellow-legged fowl a non-sitter and prolific layer. Foundation Stock purchased and Imported from the two best breeders in Europe.

DIVERSION POULTRY FARM, E. A. Frank, Prop

FARM: Kissingbower Road. CITY OFFICE: Broad St.," Augusta. Ga.

Two very Interesting and attractive folders were recently received from E. A. Frank, proprietor Diversion Poultry Farm, which is located on Kissingbower Road, with a city office on Broad St., Augusta, Ga. The first deals with "Mahogany Russian Orloff Fowl," something entirely new to us, which adds interest. The folder gives the British Standard of Perfection as the "Orloff" has been bred in England for about ten years. It is a decided aristocrat and has been bred in Russia for more than two hundred years.

Mahogany Russian Orloffs

Demand for the Orloff, both Stock and Eggs, has been far in advance of our ability to supply. If interested in this finest of utility fowls, of quaint, yet savage beauty, better place your order now for March and April young stock. Deliveries will be made July Fifteenth or August First when Breeding and Exhibition Stock can be properly selected.

DIVERSION POULTRY FARM, E. A. Frank, Prop., Augusta, GA.

City Office, Broad St Farm: Kissingbower Road

Mahogany Russian Orloffs

The Orloff has stepped Into the American Arena, backed by long ancestry, and the best combined Utility and Fancier's qualities, challenging all comers to drive him out. This new arrival is equipped to compel recognition.

Be a pioneer with the Orloff — its popularity Is absolutely assured. Avoid disappointment this Fall by placing your order now for Exhibition, Breeding and Utility Stock, deliveries to be made August, September and October. The very finest young stock, true to type and color, now developing under ideal conditions and surroundings.

DIVERSION POULTRY FARM, E. A. FRANK, Prop.

FARM: Kissingbower Road, AUGUSTA, GA. OFFICE: Broad St.

"FATHER"—

"MOTHER"—

The Mahogany Russian Orloff, bred for over two centuries and to perfection, in its native Russian home, is probably the newest arrival in America but its popularity is increasing rapidly on account of beauty, hardiness, laying ability, size — in fact almost all other good qualities that have popularized other breeds in the past. These specimens are from the Diversion Poultry Farm of which E. A. Frank is the Owner-Proprietor, located on Kissingbower Road, Augusta, Georgia with a city office on Broad Street. The cut on opposite page bespeaks the up-and-doing attractiveness of the Orloff baby chicks and they never lose that vitality and attractiveness if given half a chance. Orloffs come in four colors. Mahogany, Spangled, White and Red and are bred in continually increasing numbers in England where they were introduced about ten years ago but not taken up seriously until about 1912. "Uncommonness of type and sheer attractiveness" assures the Orloff a clear field, in Mr. Frank's opinion.

(I have included an article by Edward A. Frank, Augusta, Ga. Titled "The Russian Orloff" in which shows the Orloff baby chicks mentioned above- J. Rivera)